Launch pipeline supports Sun Pharma's growth vitals

Margins hold despite US headwinds

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 5 February

A strong third-quarter (October-December/Q3) performance for 2025-26 (FY26) has helped the stock of India's largest listed pharmaceutical (pharma) company, Sun Pharmaceutical Industries, gain about 7 per cent since the start of February. Incremental gains for the company, and the listed pharma universe more broadly, also stemmed from positive sentiment around the India-US trade deal. About a third of Sun Pharma's revenues come from the US market. Given the Q3 performance, most brokerages have upgraded the stock and assigned it a "buy" rating.

The India-US trade deal lifted investor sentiment, with the Nifty Pharma index also registering strong gains. Analyst Uttam Kumar Srimal of Axis Direct says the reduction in the US tariffs on Indian exports from 25 per cent to 18 per cent is incrementally positive for Indian pharma companies with meaningful exposure to the US market, which contributes 30-40 per cent of sector revenues. The cut lowers landed cost pressure on exports and improves price competitiveness in the structurally price-erosive US generics market.

While the reciprocal tax remains above historical norms, the revision to 18 per cent materially softens margin and earnings headwinds for Indian pharma exporters. It is expected to improve earnings visibility for 2026-27 through 2027-28 and provide near-term valuation support, particularly for US-exposed names such as Sun Pharma, the brokerage says.

The company reported a healthy Q3, with revenue and operating profit growing 13-14 per cent each, while net profit rose 17 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y). Operating profit margin improved by 24 bps Y-o-Y to 30.9 per cent. Excluding the milestone payment of $55 million, however, results were broadly in line with estimates.

Performance was driven by the global specialty segment, India formulations (up 16 per cent), emerging markets/EMs (up 28 per cent) and rest of the world (RoW) markets (up 21 per cent). This was partly offset by a weak showing in the US generics business, which grew 6 per cent Y-o-Y but declined 4 per cent sequentially.

Apart from lower sales of the generic version of cancer drug Revlimid, the company indicated that other products also saw price erosion. While clarity on a growth pickup remains limited, improvement could follow compliance fulfilment at some manufacturing locations.

Growth in the India business was led by higher volumes and new products. The company launched 12 new products during the quarter, taking the total to 26 launches over the past year. These have helped strengthen Sun Pharma's leadership position in the domestic market, where it now commands an 8.4 per cent share. The company plans to launch glucagon-like peptide-1

(GLP-1) drugs for obesity and Type 2 diabetes upon patent expiry and has received approvals for weight management and Type 2 diabetes indications.

Commenting on the outlook, JM Financial Research expects the company to outperform its single-digit growth guidance for FY26. Strong momentum in India and the RoW/EMs is encouraging and could continue over the next two years, led by specialty and GLP-1 launches, analysts Amey Chalke and Abin Benny say. While the US generics business may remain subdued, two new specialty launches and continued momentum in the plaque psoriasis drug Ilumya are expected to drive US specialty growth in the high teens. The brokerage has a 'buy' rating with a target price of ₹1,999.

BNP Paribas Research has upgraded its FY26 estimates following the margin beat and retained its 'outperform' rating. Analyst Tausif Shaikh says that Sun Pharma has outperformed on operating profit margin despite guiding for lower margins in the second half of FY26 due to higher marketing spends for new specialty launches. The brokerage has raised its FY26 operating margin estimate by 120 bps and maintained its target price at ₹2,250.

REVISED RETURN TIMELINE

Extended window to benefit late filers, global income earners

KARTHIK JEROME

The Budget has proposed extending the time limit for filing a revised return from nine to 12 months from the end of the relevant tax year, or before completion of assessment, whichever is earlier. The proposal gives taxpayers more time to incorporate updated information and correct genuine errors.

"It reinforces a trust-based tax regime and acknowledges the practical realities faced by taxpayers," says Abhishek Paliwal, partner, King Stubb & Kasiva, Advocates and Attorneys.

This extension will come into effect from April 1, 2026 and apply from assessment year (AY) 2026-27 (FY 2025-26) onwards.

A taxpayer must pay a fee to file a revised return after December 31 but before March 31. "The fee will be ₹1,000 if income is up to ₹5 lakh, and ₹5,000 if it is above ₹5 lakh," says Suresh Surana, a Mumbai-based chartered accountant.

What is a revised return?

A taxpayer can file a revised return under Section 139(5) of the Income-tax (I-T) Act, 1961, to correct errors, omissions, or incorrect statements in the original return. "Once accepted, it completely replaces the original return for assessment purposes," says Rajarshi Dasgupta, executive director - tax, AQUILAW.

A taxpayer may file a revised return if they report income incorrectly, miss any income or an income head, fail to claim a deduction or exemption, claim them incorrectly, compute tax incorrectly, give incorrect bank account details, or make other errors. "They may also file it if they miss reporting foreign assets or income, or if the reported income does not match the annual information statement (AIS)," says Rupali Singhania, partner, Areete Consultants.

"A taxpayer can revise the return even if the tax department has issued them an intimation under Section 143(1) or a scrutiny notice under Section 143(2), provided the revision timeline has not expired," says Singhania. However, it cannot be filed once the assessment is completed.

Any taxpayer who filed an original return — whether on time or belated — can file a revised return. "The law was changed from AY 2017-18, allowing even a belated return to be revised," says Itesh Dodhi, director, Nangia & Co.

Who gains from the extension

Taxpayers often receive important documents — such as revised Form 16, TDS certificates, or proof of foreign income — after the original return deadline has passed. "A longer window gives them adequate time to incorporate the information in these documents into their revised return," says Dasgupta.

People with international tax linkages may also benefit. "A March-end deadline aligns better with several global tax calendars and can reduce mismatch risk," says Dasgupta.

The extension will also give those who file a belated return (the deadline for which is also December 31) more time to revise it. It will promote voluntary compliance while also reducing the tax department's administrative burden. "The extension will help reduce assessments, penalties and litigation arising from inadvertent errors," says Surana. A revised return, however, has a couple of downsides. "A revised return may attract closer examination by the tax authorities if there are substantial changes. The introduction of a nominal fee adds a small cost," says Paliwal.

Process to file a revised return

- Log in to the e-Filing portal using your credentials
 - Go to: 'e-File' > 'Income Tax Return' > 'File Income Tax Return'
 - Choose the correct assessment year and select 'Revised Return'
 - Enter the acknowledgement number and date of filing of the original return
 - Update or correct the required details in the relevant ITR form
 - Submit the form and immediately e-verify the return
- Source: Areete Consultants

Points to heed

A taxpayer should not wait for a notice for assessment or reassessment to revise. If they notice an omission or wrong statement, they should revise immediately to avoid litigation and penal provisions.

Dodhi suggests that taxpayers should keep documentation to justify the reason for the revision, in case the tax department raises a query later. If the revision deadline has passed, a taxpayer may file an updated return in certain circumstances. "If additional tax and interest are payable due to the revision, taxpayers should pay them before revising," says Dodhi.

A revised return is a corrective mechanism. "It is not an opportunity to make a fresh claim. It should not be used to fundamentally change the tax position taken earlier," says Dodhi.

Finally, reconcile income with Form 26AS and AIS before revising the return.

Still have hypothecation on vehicle RC? Here's how to remove it online

Even after you have fully repaid your car loan, the lender remains the registered lien holder on the vehicle's registration certificate (RC) until you formally terminate hypothecation, which links the car to the bank or finance company as collateral. Now, removing hypothecation can be done online in most states through the VAHAN portal, making the process quick and transparent. Not purging the hypothecation tag can lead to problems, including in selling of the car, transfer of ownership, applying for re-registration in another state, and updating RC details.

Documents required

- No objection certificate from the lender
- Form 35 (signed by

- lender, borrower)
- Valid motor insurance certificate
- Original RC

How to apply?

The application can be filed through the VAHAN vehicle services website. The broad steps are:

- Log in to the VAHAN vehicle services portal
- Choose "Vehicle Related

- Services" under online services
- Enter registration number and chassis number
- Verify using OTP sent to your registered mobile number
- Select "Hypothecation Termination" service
- Fill insurance and vehicle details
- Upload required documents
- Check fee details and make online payment
